"My Ideas of La Crosse," an address by A. L. Goetzman, manager of Listman mills, contributed the major feature of a program which made the annual banquet of the Retail Grocers' association, held at Linder hall last evening, the crowning social event in the history of the organization.

Mr. Goetzman's remarks gave him place among the gifted public speakers of La Crosse. His method is deliberate and forceful, his address pleasant, and he has the rare faculty of effectuating the serious portions of his message by a happy seasoning of humor.

The dinner was excellent, largely because there weren't any "viands"—just a fine rare roast of beef with other accessories to call from Mr. Goetzman the high compliment that it was "a good feed." It won Secretary Harry Taggart many compliments, but none so great as that paid him by President James B. Murray when the latter referred to him as "the man who put La Crosse on the map."

President Murray reviewed the history of the association during the fourteen years of his presidency, and as toastmaster introduced Frank Sisson, who told several good stories and dwelt upon "The Good Qualities of The Retail Grocers."

An Interesting Talk
Mr. Goetzman followed with the impressions of La Crosse made upon him from the angle of an observer who, although enjoying the status of a citizen, brings with him a new viewpoint. He gave us standing as a people of hospitality, and commended the business ability which had built up here many immense industries. Some adverse criticisms he indulged in, but asked that they be held in confidence. He concluded with an appeal for better roads which showed him to be a master of that important subject. He said much good work was being done, but that the lack was permanency in character, and lack of maintenance.

William Doerflinger, president of the board of trade, created amusement by his good natured banter of the grocers and the other speakers, and followed with a tribute to the association. He also took occasion to compliment Mr. Goetzman upon his interesting comment upon La Crosse.

Judge Herman Langstadt, in a pleasant little speech, insisted that while the grocers had done much for La Crosse, he individually had done more.

We Want Population
"What we want is population," said the judge. "Now I am a justice of the peace, and when I marry a couple, I always say to them, 'La Crosse wants population.'"

Wallace Montague made a strong appeal for home support for home factories, showing that not merely the local sales, but the moral influence abroad of support at home was of immense importance.

D. W. MacWille, as chairman of the committee having the support of manufacturers in hand, told of the

FOUR MEN ARE MENTIONED

Crownhart, Scott, Hull and Hatton Are Said to Be Ready to Plunge
Into 1914 Contest

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—(Special.)—Men in close touch with the political situation are today scouting the story being sent broadcast over the state to the effect that 1914 will see a multiplicity of republican gubernatorial candidates, and maintain that progressive republican support will be centered upon one man.

George E. Scott, state senator; W. H. Hatton, former senator; C. H. Crownhart, chairman of the Industrial commission, and Merlin Hull, speaker of the Wisconsin assembly, are the four candidates ready to plunge into the race, according to the story.

"It is freely predicted," says the story, "that Mr. Hatton's announcement may be expected before the holidays. Some of his friends claim he would be satisfactory to all factions of the republican party. With his usual deftness, Speaker Hull sidetracked an answer to the main question but admitted he had received many letters encouraging an early announcement of his candidacy."

The support for Senator Scott comes largely from agricultural districts. Attention was attracted to him by reason of his championship in the last legislature of measures to reduce the fire insurance cost, especially in the agricultural districts where fireproof buildings are few and where fire rates are excessively high.

The Crownhart sentiment finds strength among the laboring classes by reason of his championship of a broader application of the workmen's compensation law.

SHUT DOWN ALL NEWS SOURCES

Apparently Desirous of Belittling Gravity of the Situation in the Republic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—President Wilson expressed to callers at the white house today his belief that the gravity of the situation growing out of the alleged communication sent by him to Huerta demanding the latter's immediate resignation, was greatly exaggerated. At the same time, he did not state whether or not a communication of any kind has been sent.

Apparently desirous of belittling the seriousness of the situation, the administration has cut off all of the regular sources of news regarding Mexico and the plans of the president. At the same time the effort was made today to spread the impression that the president is as far from considering intervention as ever.

Bryan Won't Talk
Considerable mystery still surrounds the nature of the supposed communication to Huerta. Secretary Bryan refused today to add anything to his denial, that "any ultimatum" was sent, declining to say whether a message of any sort was sent.

Secretary of State Bryan indicated today that what this government is waiting for is either formal or informal announcement by Huerta exactly what he intends to do towards keeping his express pledge to retire as provisional president.

Denying that an "ultimatum" has been given Huerta, Secretary Bryan feels that diplomatic etiquette requires that Huerta be given a reasonable time after the Mexican "elections" to hint or openly declare his future intentions. Until this is done, or at least until it becomes evident that Huerta intends to hold on, this government will defer any new drastic move.

They arrived here on the steamer Texas from Tampico.

Morning's Session

With about one hundred delegates present and the building comfortably filled, the third annual state conference of Charities and Correction opened last night at the First Congregational church.

An interest seldom seen was manifested by the large number of persons present. Owing to an unforeseen delay, President of the State Board of Control Ralph E. Smith did not arrive in the city in time to take part in the evening's program, but sent word that he would arrive tomorrow morning in time for the afternoon session of the conference. His place was taken by Miss Catherine Williams, a member of the state board of control.

Discusses Prisoner's Wage.
The address of Mrs. Katherine L. Van Wyck, president of the conference, who is presiding at all of the meetings, was an intensely interesting one. It dealt largely with the needs of state institutions, and with the accomplishments of the conferences in the past and the work of the various branches of state work that were represented.

The feature address of this morning's session, held in the auditorium of the St. Paul's Universalist church, was made by State Probation Officer B. M. Jostad.

The Hon. J. E. McConnell welcomed the visiting delegates to the convention and to the city. In part his address of welcome follows:

"To me has been assigned the privilege of extending a welcome to our guests, on behalf of the local organizations interested in social work, and on behalf of the people of our city. I shall not multiply the words of greeting but trust that the sincerity of our welcome may be evidenced by our acts as well as by our words."

Glad to Offer Hospitality.

"We are glad to offer the hospitalities of our city at any time, to gatherings of our friends and neighbors, convened for purposes of business or of pleasure. We especially appreciate the presence of a body such as this, met, not for the promotion of financial gain, nor for the amusement or selfish purpose of any sort, but for the earnest consideration and discussion of plans and means for the betterment of the world, for the welfare of mankind. Perhaps, too, I may say that we have an almost selfish motive in inviting and welcoming you to our city; for we hope to gain from your presence and your discussions, information and inspiration that will give a fresh stimulus and a new interest and impetus to social work in La Crosse and throughout western Wisconsin."

"This annual conference is a new thing in Wisconsin; new, as social movements are judged, everywhere; for modern social reform is in fact one of the latest products of Christian civilization. The reform of prisons, the reformatory for the youthful offenders, the asylum for the insane, the schools for the various defective classes, the protection of children and animals against cruelty and conscienceless greed, systematic poor relief, the organized war on infectious diseases, all these and more had their origin within the past hundred years, and most of their greater development within our own time."

Work Along New Line.
"And now in recent years, a new element of vast importance has entered into the plans and efforts of the student and worker in the social field, and is in evidence in the work of this conference. So modern is this new idea that outside of the subjects touching prison reform, the topics on this program would have been unintelligible to the student of society a generation ago. Formerly, amelioration of the conditions of the criminal and the pauper and the defective, seemed to be the only end deemed attainable or sought. Crime, vice, poverty and their natural consequences were looked upon as evils, but apparently necessary evils, to be endured by the individual affected and borne by society, with such relief of hard conditions as might be practicable. Now, the modern reformer of society seeks the abolition of poverty and crime and all the evils that follow in their train, and is exerting his energies to bring about that result. He is no

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Sixteen bodies had been recovered today from perhaps the worst railway disaster in the history of France, which occurred last night near Melun, on the Paris-Mediterranean railway. It was estimated that the total dead would reach forty. Scores were injured, many of them fatally. The seriously injured were being brought to Paris hospitals by special train.

A night mail train, made up entirely of postal cars, collided head-on with the day express from Marseilles to Paris. The blame, according to railway officials, rests on the express engine driver, who passed Melun station, thirty-seven miles from Paris, where he should have waited for the mail train.

The majority of the dead are believed to be postal clerks, of whom there were fifty or more at work when the collision occurred. The Marseilles-Paris day express is a train much used by deputies but none had been identified among the dead and injured today.

President Poincaré and his wife automobilized today to the scene of the wreck. For several hours the president and Mrs. Poincaré watched the work of rescue. Sixteen bodies had been recovered today.

One of the most pitiful incidents of the catastrophe was the death of Infantry Captain Amic of Lyons, who was pinned for ten hours during the night, under the tender of the express train. He begged the doctors to put him out of his misery. They quieted him with morphine and he died before he could be extricated.

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff correspondent of United Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Charles Francis Murphy has been recalled by the voters of New York. Even his close friends admitted this today, it was also the construction generally placed on yesterday's landslide by the voters inside and outside of Tammany.

Shorn of all patronage in this city, the Tiger faces the leanest four years in its history. Organization leaders awoke today full of fight.

Levy Holds Place

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Former Governor Sulzer was robbed of his revenge on Aaron J. Levy, assemblyman, chairman of the board of impeachment managers. Sulzer fought Levy's election as judge of the municipal court for the Fifth district. But the district is a Tammany stronghold and although Levy had a bad scare, complete return compiled today show that he pulled through by 501 in a district normally Tammany by eight or nine thousand.

They placed the blame entirely on Murphy's leadership. It was generally accepted that there will be a new deal in the Wigwam and another head before the next election rolls around.

Fusion Sweep Complete
Surveying the wreck of what was a month ago the best equipped political machine ever constructed Tammany today could find nothing that looked hopeful. The fusion sweep had been complete. Manhattan, the stronghold of Tammany, the one great fortification that in the past had always repelled the enemy had surrendered.

So enormous had been the landslide which elected John Purroy Mitchel, 34 years old, who will be New York's youngest mayor, that it carried into office the fusion county ticket in New York. Tammanyites could hardly believe this. They flocked to the headquarters on Fourteenth street, to ask in awed whispers whether the strongholds of Murphy, of Sullivan, of "The" McManus and the other district chieftains who never before faced defeat had been carried by the enemy. And they were told that this was true.

The question that overshadowed even the result of yesterday's election is how Tammany is to be reorganized. Of course Murphy reiterated that he will not quit. But the organization never forgives what is popularly termed within the ranks "fat headedness," and while Murphy was insisting to his intimates that he would stay at the helm the district leaders were scanning the horizon for a new pilot.

Wilson to Help
They were looking toward Washington. President Wilson is expected to help through the selection of a successor to John Purroy Mitchel as collector of the port. It is believed he will name a man who can have the support of all stripes of democracy in the city and who will be able, through the powerful patronage of his office, to reorganize Tammany hall along modern progressive lines. It is not believed the new collector could afford to become titular leader of Tammany but he can work with the man finally selected as Murphy's successor. The individual chiefly selected for the job today

MLLE. LACOSTA TO OPEN ENGAGEMENT

Mlle. Lucia Lacosta, who with her company of distinguished co-workers in interest of the National Society for Broader Education, will be heard in her first Song Recital this evening at the Masonic Temple, has not long been before the American public. So sterling an artist is she, however, it is only necessary to hear her once to be entirely satisfied of her worth as a great singer.

Every musician likes her work, and the beauty of her tone and the charm of her interpretations serve alike as a pleasure to the artist and an object lesson to the student. She has a voice of delicious sweetness, wide range and flute-like quality. Her enunciation is splendid. So sweetly dignified is she in every pose, her appearance is all in her favor.

Added to this is a winning manner that always strikes a sympathetic chord in the hearts of her audience and makes them her enthusiastic partisans.

Beautiful, vivacious and delightfully charming, with a wonderful voice and historic ability of the highest type, it can be truly said that no singer who has come before the public in many a long day is more thoroughly pleasing in vocal rendition than is Lucia Lacosta.

A man's children are nearly always well trained—if his wife does it.

A SORE THROAT Exposes the Whole System to Germs.

Dr. B. W. D. Barnes' Experience.

Catarth of the throat is not only an annoying disease of itself, but it exposes the victim to many other diseases. We are constantly breathing into our throats numerous atmospheric germs. Disease germs of all sorts. This cannot be avoided. If the throat is healthy the system is protected from these poisonous germs. But if the throat is raw and punctured with numerous little ulcers, by catarth, then the disease germs have easy access to the system.

Keep the throat well and clean. This is the way to protect yourself against contagious diseases. Gargle the throat, as explained in the new "Hills of Life," sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Barnes, of McMinnville, Tenn., used to be sheriff of Warren county, Tennessee. From exposure to the elements he acquired throat trouble. He supposed that his health was entirely ruined, in spite of all the treatment he could procure.

After using four bottles of Peruna he claims he was entirely restored to health.

Mr. Barnes says: "I had throat trouble and had three doctors treating me. All failed to do me any good, and pronounced my health gone. I concluded to try Peruna, and after using four bottles can say I was entirely relieved."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

BIG INCREASE IN EVENING PUPILS

Nearly Double Enrollment Over Last Year Says Sutherland's Report

At the meeting of the Industrial board last night in the report of Mr. F. G. Sutherland, head of the continuation schools, was the most interesting thing developed. It showed that there were 420 enrolled in the night school where there were only 244 last year, and that the percentage of attendance was 82.5 per cent.

In the day continuation schools there were 159 students enrolled this year while there were but 153 last year. The percentage of attendance at this school is remarkable, the average being 96 per cent. The courses are especially popular are those in bookkeeping, penmanship, typewriting and shorthand. In these courses there were but 70 last year as against 96 this year.

The increasing popularity of the dressmaking classes has made necessary three more classes. The increase is wonderful, the jump being from 22 last year to 84 this year with four classes taking the subject.

SOUTH COUNTIES LEAST HEALTHFUL

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—During August, September and October there were just 6,432 deaths in Wisconsin, according to a statement issued Tuesday, by Dr. C. A. Harper, secretary of the state board of health.

Dr. Harper said that this is at the rate of 10.6 deaths per thousand of population. The rate for the same period in 1912 was 9.9. Dr. Harper also said that the rate for the northern part of the state was 9.3, for the central part, 10.3 and for the southern part just 11.5.

Statistics show that there were seven deaths from lockjaw, one from rabies, one from pellagra and one from snake bite during that time.

PARADE WELCOMES BISHOP KOUDELKA

SUPERIOR, Wis., Nov. 5.—The largest gathering of Catholic clergy ever assembled in this city took part in and witnessed the great Catholic parade Tuesday night by which the Rev. Joseph M. Koudeka, the newly appointed bishop of the diocese of Superior, was welcomed to the city.

More than 1,000 Catholics took part in the parade, with Chief of Police Vincent McKinnon as marshal. The new bishop and civic band in automobiles headed the procession, which was made up of the Slovak societies, the Pulaski guards, and other Catholic societies.

GRAFTON STATUE PLACED ON TOMB

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Nov. 5.—The recumbent figure of the late Bishop Grafton, carved out of white Carrara marble in Italy, was put in place on the top of his tomb in St. Paul's cathedral on Tuesday. The carving is exquisite and represents a full length figure of the dead prelate attired in eucharistic vestments. The carving is so beautifully executed that the film lace of the vestments appears to be real. The features are lifelike except for the marble pallor.

SPOTLIGHTS

"TIK-TOK MAN OF OZ"

The "Tik-Tok Man of Oz" which Oliver Morosco will present at the La Crosse theater tonight, is announced as a companion play to "The Wizard of Oz" but it is much more than that. It is an extravaganza embodying musical comedy, magnificent spectacles and with a score musically enough and with a scenic investiture on a scale of gorgeousness seldom seen in this or any other country. When it is said that a special train is required to haul the four baggage cars, three day coaches and three Pullmans, one begins to get some conception of the magnitude of this production. The same cast which appeared during the long engagement in Chicago will appear here and include such well known artists as Morton and Moore, Charlotte Greenwood, Sydney Grant, Dolly Castles, Lenora Novasio, Gipsy Dale, John Dunsmuir, Fred Woodward, Mary Mooney and the celebrated California Rosebud chorus.

TO GIVE PHOTOGRAPHS

Everybody attending the matinee performance on Thursday afternoon will receive a souvenir "photo" of the leading lady, Miss Lorena Tolson, at the La Crosse theater, where the Van Dyke-Eaton company present "The Power of a Woman," which will hold the boards until Sunday matinee, when "Tempest and Sunshine" will be the bill for the first half of next week. Friday night "amateurs" will appear as usual and a matinee is announced for Saturday afternoon.

The Fisherman Pulled in the Line.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—When Mr. Frog Took Mr. Fish's Fly Away.

"NOW," said daddy, "cuddle down and I will tell you a story about Mr. Fish and Mr. Frog."

Jack and Evelyn perched themselves beside daddy, and he told them the following yarn, which you may believe or not as you like.

"Mr. Fish and Mr. Frog lived in the lake. They were not very good friends, however," said he.

"Mr. Frog thought Mr. Fish snapped up too many bugs and flies. Mr. Frog thought that all the insects that buzzed around the stone in the middle of the lake belonged to him.

"Why don't you stay away from my stone?" Mr. Frog would say when he saw the fish swimming up. But the fish would only open its mouth wide, and when a fly came along swallow it.

"Stop your grumbling," the fish replied one day. "Why don't you travel about a little, then you would find plenty of flies to eat. You can hop about on land, but we fishes cannot get out of the lake to search for food."

"But the frog replied that he had found the rock first, and so it was his place, and everything to be found there by right belonged to him.

"One morning a man came down to the lake. He sat down where he was hidden by some bushes. Then he put a rod together and fitted a great, big, lovely bug to the end of it. When he had fastened the bug in place he threw the line out so the bug spun over the water.

"That's a mighty fine looking bug," Mr. Frog said as he peeped at it from behind the cluster of reeds, where he was hiding.

"So he crept a little closer, and he swam a little and dived a little and came up just beside the lily pad, where the fly was floating. Mr. Fish wasn't to be seen anywhere, and so Mr. Frog reached out and grabbed the fly. He began to swallow it, but it didn't go down far. Right where it wouldn't show there was a hook fastened to the fly.

"Huh! Nothing but an old green frog!" the fisherman snorted, and he took the hook out of Mr. Frog's throat and threw him back into the lake.

"Mr. Frog was so anxious to get away that he dived straight down to the bottom of the lake, where he met Mr. Fish calmly swimming around.

"How did you like my fly?" Mr. Fish asked slyly. You see, he was too old and smart to be fooled by one of the fisherman's made up flies.

"Mr. Frog didn't say a word in reply, he was too scared and mortified.

"For several days he was laid up with a sore throat, and he never again complained because Mr. Fish caught flies near his rock."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Joy to the Starving Dyspeptics Who Cannot Safely Eat

To seat one's self at a festive board or a heavily laden table and not be able to eat is positive sorrow to most dyspeptics and stomach sufferers, and likewise pain.

"I Walk to My Meals and Eat All I Want, Then a Stuart's Dyspepsia Sablet Makes Good for Me"

When your system is robbed of its natural digestive juices, in their correct proportion, a little candy-like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet gives to them the qualities they lack and you thereby rest the digestive apparatus and allay irritation, pain, gas and stomach trouble.

Pepsin such as used in a Stuart's tablet is one of nature's greatest aids; and when this is combined with the other ingredients you simply bring happiness to every worn-out nerve of the stomach, liver, intestines, pancreas and other organs.

Predigested foods will not aid nature if she insists on manufacturing the wrong juices. Besides this the bowels need coarse and heavy foods in order to make bowel pack which is vitally essential to health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mix with the food in the stomach, have a tendency to stop gas formation, sour stomach, decay, etc.; then as the food passes into the lower digestive tract (the intestines) it takes the Stuart's digestive agents with it, and there is where the real work is done.

The nutritive value of food and tablet is separated from the waste matter and is assimilated and distributed into the proper parts of the body. The blood is enriched and the liver stored with the qualities the system needs.

Go to your druggist now and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, price 50c, and then eat what you will; but take a tablet afterwards. Then will come to you the beginning of the end of all your stomach troubles and food fears.

AT LEAST LET US NOT "HELP THE BAR"

"The Mexican constitutionalists have asked frequently and, through their leader, Carranza, ask again that the United States grant them the same opportunity to obtain munitions of war as the Mexican government has. Thus far we have pursued the same policy with regard to the unrecognized administration as would have been pursued with regard to a constitutionally established government. We have demanded protection for foreigners and have not permitted shipments of arms to be used by the opposition.

"This has not contributed anything to the pacification of the disordered states. The constitutionalists keep themselves in the field and get their munitions as they are able. They are able to avoid engagements most of the time, unless they choose to accept an opportunity. The duration of such warfare may be indefinite. The condition invites to brigandage and murder.

"We might serve the interests of peace best by permitting the opposition to obtain arms and come to a speedier decision."

If the Chicago paper is correctly informed, we have not understood the details of our relations with the belligerents. If this country is in the position of permitting the bloody usurper, Huerta, to arm his disreputable cause from our factories, while withholding that privilege from the constitutionalists, we are not flattered. We have no patience with the suggestion that it would be well to permit both factions to arm themselves and proceed to their mutual extermination, but if there must be war we should at least give the cause of freedom an "even break."

FINE INSPIRATION FAULTY PHILOSOPHY

Bull moose philosophy, as enunciated by Theodore Roosevelt, has much to commend it, and the forward-looking citizen may well find inspiration in these words of the colonel:

"We recognize fully that everything we do for the democracy will be futile unless the democracy acts for itself in a spirit of loyalty to itself and to the institutions it has created for the expression of its highest thought and purpose.

"We wish to establish the same moral law for the two sexes, but we wish to do it by raising the morality of the man, not by lowering the morality of the woman.

"We desire, as far as possible, to substitute co-operation for competition."

"All our contention is that no man should live on the earnings of anyone else without himself rendering service."

However, brushing aside the significant fact that the bull moose leaders form a picturesque group of "lame ducks" and beneficiaries of special privilege, while it has not won the confidence of the real patriots who have won along the way of progress, the logic of this dicta will not stand analysis. With the controlling political machinery by which parties perpetuate themselves in the hands of the administration the "benevolent despotism" would swiftly become the malevolent despotism. And possessed of this power, backed by broad party declarations capable of criminal abuse, a single maladministration would suffice to "stake" a generation of billionnaires with the bulk of the public resources. So long as men are fallible individuals must not be clothed with this dictatorial authority, and as when men become infallible government will not be necessary the proposal is reduced to an absurdity.

IS PANAMA CANAL ITS OWN EPIC?

Our national pride in the Panama achievement is natural, and justified. It is great, stupendous, and it is typical that the American, who "nor fears to grasp the iron hand of Fate, or match with destiny for beers," mingles with his appreciation of it a nonchalant humor of which is conveyed in the following verses from the pen of the Wisconsin bard, Berton Braley:

"Here we are, gentlemen; here's the whole gang of us, Pretty near through with the job we are on; Size up our work—it will give you the hang of us— South to Balboa and north to Colon; Yes, the canal is our letter of reference; Look at Culebra and glance at Gatun; What can we do for you—got any preference, Wireless to Saturn or bridge to the moon?"

Colliers, in which the above poem appeared, suggests that "poets and canal diggers are not so different, after all," and offers as etymological evidence the fact that, "There is one Greek word for 'I do' from which we get the word practical, and another Greek word for 'I do' from which we get the word poet."

Further, Colliers quotes the San Diego Tribune to the effect that, "Perhaps the Panama Canal is in itself an epic that could not be improved upon by other poets than those who have written it already in the rocks and jungles."

The canal is a splendid subject for inspiration—its conception, the triumph over tropical disease, its execution. But our method of acquiring the right of way will never become the subject of a national epic.

"BACK TO THE SPOILS SYSTEM"

"The above heading appears over a Washington dispatch to the New York Evening Post, which was an 'original Wilson man' and has been very friendly to his administration," says The Saturday Evening Post. "The dispatch begins: 'Slowly but surely the democrats in Congress are working into the foundations of the civil service structure. The Urgent Deficiency bill, as reported by the Senate, contains a provision removing from the classified service United States deputy marshals and deputy collectors of internal revenue.'"

"The significance of this lies in the circumstance that it appeared coincidentally with reports that Mr. Wilson is considering a plan to embark the government extensively in the telephone business.

"The two things never will work together. The government can operate telephones and telegraphs—and railroads, for that matter—on business principles. It cannot operate them on spoils principles, except at a cost that would make the experiment a national calamity. The busy little grafters in both houses of Congress, who distribute public offices as rewards for political service, fairly foreclose the federal government from some fields that it might enter successfully but for them. So long as the public service is burdened with this patronage graft an extension of that service to new fields may well be viewed with alarm."

Truly, this retrogression is the big mystery of Wilsonism, and the president's attempts to give reassurance by referring to his "well known" friendship for the civil service system fails to satisfy.

Big prices are being paid for grains, but unfortunately for the farmer there can't be a short crop every year.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Old and the New
Dick Turpin of old was a highwayman bold,
He was one of the numerous clan
Who robbed day and night and laughed at the plight
Of their victims who shrieked as they ran.
They lorded the road and they held up each load
Of travelers heavy with swag;
Then they scurried away in a manner most gay,
Each thief with a corpulent bag.
It is easier now, even Dick would allow,
To hold up the innocent folk,
For the robber today has a much safer way—
He wears not a mask or a cloak.
He corners the meat that public must eat,
And the eggs and the butter and cream;
Then he raises the rates and he deals in rebates,
And life is one long pleasant dream.

Enoch, the Egg King

A tall, gaunt young man entered the office of the Globe Museum and Family theater and asked for the manager.
"What can I do for you?" inquired a pudgy man in a checked suit.
"I want an engagement as a freak in the curio hall."
"Who are you?"
"I am Enoch, the Egg King."
"What is your specialty?"
"I eat three dozen hen eggs, two dozen duck eggs, and one dozen goose eggs at a single sitting."
"I suppose you know our policy."
"What's that?"
"We give four shows every day."
"I understand that."
"And do you think you can do it?"
"I know I can."
"On Saturdays we often given as many as six shows."
"All right."
"And on some holidays we give a performance every hour."
The young man hesitated.
"In that case," he finally said, "I must have one thing understood before I sign a contract."
"What's that?" asked the manager.
"No matter how rushing business is at the museum," the Egg King replied, "you gotta gimme time enough to eat my regular meals at the hotel."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Plenty of Latitude

Dr. Baillie was a famous Scotch physician of the old school, patient and gentle, as a rule, but with a great practice that sometimes made him a little testy with persons who consumed too much of his time with trifling complaints. At one time, after listening to a long story from a lady who was so little ill that she intended to go to the opera that night, the doctor left the room with a sigh of relief. He had just got down the stairs when he was called back.
"Doctor," feebly asked the lady, "may I, on my return tonight, eat a few oysters?"
"Yes, madam," roared the doctor, "shells and all."—Buffalo Commercial.

Deep-Rooted Teeth

An Irishman with one jaw much swollen from a tooth that he wished to have pulled, entered the office of a Washington dentist.
When the suffering Celt was put into the chair and saw the gleaming forceps approaching his face he positively refused to open his mouth. Being a man of resource, the dentist quietly instructed his assistant to push a pin into the patient's leg, so that when the Irishman opened his mouth to yell the dentist could get at the refractory molar.
When all was over the dentist smilingly asked:
"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?"
"Well, no," reluctantly admitted the patient, "but," he added, as he ran his hand over the place into which the assistant inserted the pin, "little did I think them roots wait that far down."—Success Magazine.

The Active Baby

"What a lively baby!" said Flaberry. "Have ye had his picture took yet, I dunno?"
"Not yet," said Fogarty, the proud father. "We tried to, but after an hour's lost labor the photographer rayferred us to a movin' picture studio."—Lippincott's.

A Romance of Extraordinary Distinction

The Marshal

By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews Author of The Perfect Tribute, etc. Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Company

Colonel Henry Hampton faced a portrait of the first Henry Hampton of Roanoke, stately with brass buttons and silver lace, set in the panels seventy-five years before. Lucy had concluded her broiled chicken and bacon and hot bread, and now as he, late for breakfast always, followed in her wake, he read the Norfolk and Portsmouth Herald with which a colored boy had that morning ridden out from Norfolk, eight miles away. It was before the time of daily papers, except in a large city or two, and this of once a week was an event; a boy was sent into Norfolk the day before its publication that the colonel might have it at the earliest moment.

The colonel's heavy-dragon type of face was handsome and weak; a bushy mustache jutted from beneath his fine nose, as if in an effort to make it soldierly and masculine. The features were modeled on the big-boned, lean features of men who had done things; only the spirit was left out. It was as if a man who inherited his ancestor's massive silver platters had no meat to put on them. His uncertain eyes, under their splendid brows, wandered from column to column of the little sheet, leaving this and that article unfinished, and as he read he reported bits of news to his daughter.

"How would you like to see a live prince, Lucy?" he inquired. "The Herald states that we have one with us, not ten miles from Roanoke. Prince Louis Napoleon was landed from the Andromede, in Norfolk, and only yesterday. Poor young man," he went on condescendingly, "he has no money, I understand, and here he is stranded in a strange country with his fortune to make, and no assets but a title. It's little that will help him in the states!"

Colonel Hampton glanced over to see if she were listening to his words of wisdom; he liked an attentive audience. He was enchanted with her expression. She had dropped knife and fork and, with her blue eyes stretched wide, her white teeth shining, was drinking in his sentences.

"Father! Is Prince Louis in Norfolk? How can it be? Monsieur Beaupre was talking to me about him last night, and he did not dream of his coming here. Surely he would have known if the Prince were expected."

Colonel Hampton smiled sarcastically. "You will find that your father occasionally knows more than even Monsieur Beaupre, and even on French questions, I may add," he announced, from a mountain height. "But in one point you are right, my dear. The Prince was not expected by any one, not even by the great Chevalier Beaupre. He was exiled from France, as you may or may not know, some four and a half months ago, on account of his attempt on Strasbourg, and was sent out on the Andromede, with sealed orders. No one knew his destination until he landed, on the twenty-eighth, in Norfolk. There—the colonel got up and walked to the fireplace and stood with his back to the blaze, and his legs far apart, masterfully. 'There, my dear, I have given you a dose of history for a female mind. How are you going to amuse your little self today?' The female mind paid not attention to the digression. Lucy had long ago, finally if unconsciously, put her father's personality into its right place.

"Father, is the Prince really poor and alone in this country?"

"Poor—yes, I fancy—I am quite certain, in fact. Alone—that depends. The authorities of Norfolk received him with some distinction, the Herald states, but he is putting up at the inn—one would conclude that he was not an invited guest at many of our great houses."

Lucy flew like a bird across to the fireplace. Her hands went up to either side of the colonel's face. "Father, quick! Have Thunder saddled, and ride in—quick, father—and bring the Prince out here to stay with us. Give the order to Sambo, or I shall."

Colonel Hampton's eyes widened with surprise. "Why, but Lucy," he stammered, "Why—but why should I? What claim have we—"

"Oh, nonsense," and Lucy shook her head impatiently. "Who has more claim? Aren't we Virginians of the James River princes in our own country, too? Hasn't our family reigned in Roanoke longer, than ever his reigned in Europe? Haven't we enough house-room and servants to make him as comfortable as in a palace? But that isn't the most important. It is a shame to us all, father, that no one has invited him before, that a strange gentleman of high station should have to lodge at an inn. Why hasn't Cousin George Harrison asked him to Brandon? And the Carters at Shirley, and the people at Berkeley—what do they mean by not asking him? But we won't let Virginian hospitality be stained. We will ask him. You will ride to Norfolk at once, will you not, father dear?"

The touch on his cheek was pleasant to the vain and affectionate man, but the spirit of the girl's speech, the suggestion of the courtesy due from him as a reigning prince, to this other Prince forlorn and exiled, this was pleasanter. He pursed his lips and smiled down. "Out of the mouth of babes," he remarked, and drew his brows together as if under stress of large machinery behind them. "My little girl, you have rather a sensible idea. I had overlooked before that"—he cleared his throat and black Aaron standing tray in hand across the room, jumped and rolled his eyes—"that," he continued, "a man of my importance has duties of hospitality, even to a foreigner who comes without introduction into the country."

"Introduction—bother!" remarked the daughter. "The idea of a nephew of the Emperor of France needing"—she stopped. This was the wrong line of argument. "I think he will be delighted to come to Roanoke House," she went on. "It is so beautiful—even in winter," and she looked proudly about the fine room, and the portraits on its walls looked back at her proudly too.

"Many distinguished guests have been delighted to visit Roanoke," Colonel Hampton answered stiffly. "The bankrupt sprig of a parvenu royalty—"

"Father—what horrid big words!" she interrupted, "except that you're abusing Prince Louis, who is probably having a bad breakfast in that stuffy inn. Go along, father, bring him out to Roanoke, and we'll show him what Virginia breakfasts are like."

Colonel Hampton's sense of importance was tickled by the thought of having for a guest a scion of so

His Quandary
"What I can't get through me," says Father Hornhand, "is how these here dressmakers gits their ideas. For instance, I seen a woman on 't street that looked 's if they wasn't nobody in her clothes a tall, an' my married darter which is a city dressmaker woman, said 't dress wuz 'too full,' when it looked 't me's if it was gosh dinged nigh empty. An' afterwards I seen one 'at looked 's if y' couldn't 'a' squeezed a cambric needle in beside er, an' my darter said 'twasn't full enough,' when it look 't me 's if 't would bust if they tried 't fill it any fuller, by heck."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Other Kind
A captain of one of the ocean liners was showing a young lady friend of his over the ship during one of his eastward trips. As they passed through the steerage, he called his fair companion's attention to a big, husky emigrant, who was putting away with knife fork, and spoon, a bountiful supply of corned beef and cabbage, combined with other articles of diet. The captain eyed him for a moment, then addressing the young lady, said: "Just look at the enormous amount of food that fellow is consuming."

"I suppose, captain," said the fair young girl, with a beaming smile, "he is what you sailors call a stow-away."—Lippincott's Magazine.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Agent, Chas. Beyschlag, Druggist, 503 Main St.

THAW ATTORNEY SAYS REQUISITION PAPERS ARE BASED ON THE WRONG INDICTMENT

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 5.—Judge W. M. Chase, attorney for Harry K. Thaw, in a brief filed with Governor Feltner today asserts that the second requisition papers, signed by Governor Flynn, October 24, asking the return of Thaw are based upon the Dutchess conspiracy indictment, although a copy of the New York county indictment charging conspiracy accompanies the second extradition request.

Judge Chase declares the request for extradition does not charge the fugitive with having conspired in the borough of Manhattan, as alleged in the New York county indictment, and he argues that the extradition case now stands as it did before the second indictment was found.

W. T. Jerome has until Thursday to file his reply to the Thaw briefs. The extradition decision is now expected a week from today.

KATHARINE TYNAN

THIS dramatic story paints the portrait of a woman as beautiful, fascinating, witty, and lovable as the social world of England has seen. She might easily have been the queen. Three noble suitors were her unusual portion.

A woman of extraordinary intellect and perception, she was capable of casting up the social scene as few could do. She may be called the most notable member of the court circle of George III. In Rose of the Garden, the author has transfused romantic history into brilliant fiction.

WATERY BLISTERS ON CHILD'S FACE

Kept Scratching Until Cheeks Fiery Red, Skin Cracked and Scaly, Itched and Burned. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. No Return of Trouble.

Smithville, Ind.—"Six months ago our baby girl, one year old, had a few red pimples come on her face which gradually spread causing her face to become very irritated and a fiery red color. The pimples on the child's face were at first small watery blisters just a small blotch on the skin. She kept scratching at this until in a few days her whole cheeks were fiery red color and instead of the little blisters the skin was cracked and scaly looking and seemed to itch and burn very much.

"We used a number of remedies which seemed to give relief for a short time then leave her face worse than ever. Finally we got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed the child's face with very warm water and Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment very lightly. After doing this about three times a day the itching and burning seemed entirely gone in two days' time. Inside of two weeks' time her face seemed well. That was eight months ago and there has been no return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. K. Woodson, Nov. 4, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexioned, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

AGAINST HOME RULE

BELFAST, Nov. 5. — Combined wealth estimated at $500,000,000 was represented today at a gigantic business men's anti-home rule mass meeting in historic Ulster hall. Mr. George Ewart, president of the chamber of commerce, occupied the rostrum. He said that the meeting was called to disprove the statements made in England that the commercial interests of Ulster were not in sympathy with the movement against home rule.

The meeting unanimously and enthusiastically adopted a resolution declaring that Ulster business men will refuse to pay taxes to a Dublin parliament and approving of the organization of the Ulster volunteers, the "provisional government" and other war-like measures adopted by Ulsterites.

RUSHFORD, MINN.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seabolt of Brooklyn believe that Sunday is their lucky day, as upon the last one the Stork Special left at their home a sturdy nine and a half pound visitor, who insisted upon taking up his future abode with them.

Beginning with Monday evening, Rushfordites and many from the surrounding country have had a chance to "see themselves as others see them," as Mr. Nicholas of the Elite theater on that evening began the series of "movies" which were taken by Mr. Ben Huntley of Winona, during the fall festival.

Rushford will lose another family very soon. Mr. Ed Fenstermacher intends to move his family to Wisconsin in a few more weeks, he having purchased land about one and a quarter miles from Stanley, in the timber country.

Rev. Foster and family of Faribault have arrived in this city and will reside in the house owned by Miss Emma Crampton, beside the public library. Rev. Foster is the new rector of Emmanuel church of this city.

The residence property lately owned by Peter Skaar, has been purchased by Mrs. John Peterson and will be occupied by Alfred Peterson and family. Mr. Soren Backman's family, who have been occupying the place, have moved to the rooms over the Sievert Tofstad shop.

Mrs. Carl Berg, who underwent an operation for goiter at the Lutheran hospital at La Crosse a short time ago, is now home and is rapidly regaining her strength.

Mirth, mystery and magic reigned supreme at the Rushford Opera house Friday and Saturday nights, when Puluhai, the mystic, visited the city and held his big audience spellbound by his Swiss bell ringing and mind reading, his sleight of hand performances and moving pictures.

Accompanied by his wife and two little children (all three of whom take part in each evening's program) he was in the city from Friday till Monday.

The Missionary and Aid societies of the Rushford Presbyterian church will meet at the church parlors on the afternoon of Saturday, November 15th. Luncheon will be served after the devotional exercises and business meeting. All are very cordially invited to attend.

Carl Snaby, editor of the Peterson Herald, was a visitor in our city Saturday, being accompanied by his family.

Mrs. A. McDermid and daughter, Mrs. D. P. Nestor, departed last Thursday for Miranda, S. D., for a visit with relatives there and at Orient, S. D. Mrs. McDermid will remain through the winter there.

Dr. Craig of Brooklyn, who has been spending the summer with relatives at Lams Springs, Iowa, has arrived home.

The Presbyterian church of this city welcomed five new members Sunday, those who joined being Mrs.

About two hundred invited guests witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Nels Magleson. The bride was becomingly attired in a dainty gown of white veiling over messaline and carried a bouquet of fragrant American Beauty roses. She was attended by the Misses Louise Henze and Jennie Evenson. The groom who wore the conventional black, was attended by Edward Nation and Henry Evenson. After the ceremony the guests were served to a bounteous supper at the bride's home. This young couple are well and favorably known here and after a short honeymoon trip to the Twin cities they will reside on the Jacob Johns place, which was recently purchased by the groom's father.

Mitchell's plurality was in excess of 115,000. The chief successful candidates were:

Mayor, John Purroy Mitchell; comptroller, William A. Prendergast; president board of aldermen, George McAneny.

The borough senators elected were: Manhattan, Marcus M. Marks, fusion; Brooklyn, Lewis H. Pounds, fusion; Bronx, Douglas Mathewson, republican; Queens, Maurice E. Connelly, democrat and anti-Tammany; Richmond, Charles J. McCormick, democrat.

Carried Every Borough Mitchell carried every borough in the city. An incident in the rout of Tammany for the first time in many years of Julius Harburger, now sheriff. Harburger was disqualified by law from succeeding himself as sheriff but he forced his nomination for coroner of New York county. He was bowled over by the fusionists.

Murphy to "Come Back." Tammany hall will "come back." No less an authority than Charles Francis Murphy says so. And instead of being cast down by yesterday's defeat, Murphy says his organization will work harder than ever to rejuvenate itself.

Murphy was at his desk at the wigwam today. When he granted his usual audience to the reporters, he was as smiling as ever, and he departed from his Sphinx-like role to jest with his interviewers for a few moments. "It is said that you are going to resign as leader of Tammany," was the first statement made to him.

"Is that so," grinned Murphy, "who says so?"

Malone Collector Dudley Field Malone, third assistant secretary of state, and son-in-law of Senator O'Gorman of New York, will succeed John Purroy Mitchell, mayor-elect of New York, as collector of the port at New York, it was stated today at the White house.

The collectorship is one of the fattest plums within the president's disposal. The promotion of Malone, who fought Tammany while his father-in-law supported the Tiger, is generally considered here as a direct slap at Tammany by the administration.

work of the committee and made a deep impression with his logical presentation of the merits of the cause he represented.

Upon the suggestion of Joseph J. Felber a resolution was offered and unanimously carried committing the grocers to the support of the home-made goods advertising campaign by permitting their names to be attached to advertisements of LaCrosse goods which they carry in stock.

All Are Honest E. H. Derr, city sealer, made a pleasant impression in outlining his attitude toward the business men. He said that he had begun by considering all honest, and that in that way he had secured their cooperation; he had found his judgment good, for they were honest, and his work had been largely adjusting the measures and weights to the new law. What delinquencies were found were technical, and had been quickly remedied.

At the conclusion of Mr. Derr's speech the meeting became informal. Solos by John Uttermoehl and Emil Neimeyer were enthusiastically applauded.

SPARTA DEFEATS TOMAH 66 TO 0

Play Rivals Off Their Feet and Show They Will Give La Crosse a Hard Game

SPARTA, Wis., Nov. 5.—About fifteen hundred people witnessed the game between Sparta and Tomah and every one was excited to his finger tips all the time. Greatest interest has been shown in the game for the time it was scheduled and this accounted for the great number at the game. Sparta and Tomah are old rivals and next to La Crosse Sparta glories in the defeat of Tomah. The gate receipts were over three hundred dollars.

Tomah was outclassed in all stages of the game and the Spartans rolled up the score until it was 66 to 0. Tomah held the locals the first quarter to a small score but in the second their defense began to weaken and the Spartans played them off their feet. Jack Nicol, the Sparta star, could not be tackled by the Tomah players, and he made 40 and 50 yard runs time after time. Almer was taken from the Sparta team unconscious and Abrahamson was put in.

This game puts Sparta more in the championship race against La Crosse. La Crosse only beat the Tomah team 13 to 7. The work of all the other players was also highly commendable of the Sparta players and from the rest except Jack they all starred.

The students had a big bonfire on the market square in the evening after the game and many of the high school students were there. They yelled until they were hoarse and danced until they were tired and then they dispersed. The football dance at the Assembly hall was well attended.

AROUSE SPIRIT TO BEAT MADISON

In anticipation of the Madison game Saturday, a most enthusiastic mass meeting was held at the high school this morning. The second team was called on to show what kind of yelling they did at Lanesboro and the first team was called up just to be seen. Marshall announced the return of Zeisler to the game, which was greeted with loud applause. Zeisler was one of last year's back field and his presence will bolster up the back field greatly. The team has entirely recovered from the defeat at Grand Rapids and a scrimmage was announced for tonight. The school is expected to turn out and root.

WAS UNBALANCED BY OVERSTUDY

Thought that Ill Health Induced by Overwork Caused Him to Take Life

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—Clarence S. Fertig of Milwaukee, a senior in the school of letters and science at the University of Wisconsin, committed suicide at Tenney park this morning at 8:30 o'clock.

No reason is known for the act. He shot himself four times over the heart and then walking a distance of twelve feet plunged into a lagoon. Fertig was studious and it is thought that ill-health and overwork may have deranged his mind. No other reason is known for the act. He was about 28 years of age.

For several years past he has been a manual training teacher at Milwaukee.

The mother of the dead man lives in Milwaukee and a sister resides at Watertown.

CROWDED HOUSE GREET SPEAKER

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn Repeats First Impression at Presbyterian Church

Mrs. Booth-Clibborn spoke in the First Presbyterian church last evening to a crowded house that listened with rapt attention to the words of love and light that poured from the heart of this remarkable woman.

An unique feature of her meeting was her singing a most touching song, "Sweeter Than All the World is Jesus," the audience joining in the chorus. She introduced one new song every evening, taking a few moments to familiarize the audience with the words and the melody. These simple but sweet melodies reach the heart and convey a message of unusual power.

The speaker read a passage from the prophet Hosea, fifth chapter and fourth verse, for the basis of her discourse: "They Will Not Frame Their Doings to Turn Unto God."

She dwelt upon the word "frame" indicating a purpose on the part of the people to do or not to do as they chose. Ancient Israel chose not to fashion their doings so as to please God, and this is the peril of the present generation of Christians, she declared.

Her voice and manner are at times dramatic and commanding, reminding those of her audience who have heard her father of the fire and boldness of the old general.

She dwelt again on "doings" in the passage read, saying that emotion is an essential element in the religion of Jesus, as it is the religion of the heart and of downright reality.

France Rejects Forms

In France she said the people, especially the educated, have turned away from religion in disgust because it was only words in so many cases without heart and large audiences of men would listen in dumb amazement to her story of religion as the presence of Jesus in the heart, as a great reality that became consuming passion in one's life.

But emotion without its outward expression, the speaker said, is a sham and a delusion. "Doings" are the outward signs of religion in the heart. She then related an instance of a splendid young man coming to her, that his zeal for football had taken away all his zeal for Christ. She said that in England, and she suspected in America, men who are supposedly Christian will show their zeal for sports much more readily than they do for their religion. Their "doings" betray their hearts.

She dwelt with special emphasis on the figure the prophet had used in calling his people to the Lord. It was that of a faithful wife to her husband. The worldling, the unconverted, the ungodly man, she said, has never made any pledge of love and loyalty to the Lord Jesus, but the church member, the professing Christian has pledged solemnly before high heaven to be true to Jesus Christ, and then they turn around and join the world in its mad rush after money and pleasure. They bear the name of Christ but give their time, talent and influence to the world.

Reluctant to Leave At the close of the service a manifest reluctance was shown on the part of the audience to depart. Many went into the anteroom for prayers and others commented in the auditorium on the wonderful message they had just heard.

RUNAWAY BOYS ARE CAUGHT BY POLICE

M'CONNELL OPENS STATE CONFERENCE OF SOCIOLOGISTS

longer content to deal with the effects but seeks to remove causes. "Perhaps to most men, this new creed may seem like 'an iridescent dream,' yet it is a dream that may come true, and the world is certainly the better for such an ideal and for the work of those who strive toward its realization.

"And so, ladies and gentlemen of this conference, we welcome you and rejoice in your pursuit of this vision of a regenerated society, a perfected world, and though men may seem indifferent or even hostile, though daily progress may seem slow, and the struggle often discouraging, a glance backwards over a hundred years is reassuring, and we have faith, as you have in the future."

Discuss State Institutions

In a deeply interesting address, President Mrs. Katherine L. Van Wyck thoroughly went over the situation that was before the people of Wisconsin in caring for all the different classes of men and women and children, who through different reasons, were public charges. She also devoted a part of her address to the state institutions for insane and diseased persons.

Mrs. Van Wyck said in part: "At the first meeting of the conference held in Milwaukee in 1911, specific needs and phases of various charitable and benevolent work which needed attention were considered. Eight cities only had organized their charitable activities to any extent.

"In 1912 at Madison, methods were discussed largely, in regard to the work that the university can do to aid in the solution of the social problems.

"Since the first conference, the development in the state along social lines has been marked. The number of cities having associated charities has increased from eight to fourteen with paid secretaries. These combine visiting nurse and truancy work. Twenty cities in all are organized."

Tuberculosis Work

In this part of her address, Mrs. Van Wyck touched largely on the Wisconsin Tuberculosis association which has secured provisions for seven new county hospitals which will care for 371 patients, the appropriations amounting to over $777,500. Three cities in the state have employed local health officers, and three have open air schools.

Mrs. Van Wyck said that a great advance in the ability to meet social needs had been made through the aid of the last legislature. She mentioned the quarantine and marriage laws and the tuberculosis camp in the forest reserve.

"The usefulness of the good laws passed in the last legislature will depend largely on our faithfulness and intelligence in their administration," said Mrs. Van Wyck.

"The fact that the social workers of the state asked to have these laws passed, places upon us all a responsibility to assist in their correct and efficient use.

"But there are more evils still to be corrected and towards the elimination of which we must begin to work. These evils are more or less common to all communities.

"Every community has the lazy, non-supporting husband, the deserting husband and father, and the tramp. There are remedies for all these evils and it is our duty and the privilege to fight against them."

Must Abolish "Bums"

A feature of Mrs. Van Wyck's address was the statement that not until the railroads of the United States lined up with the policies of other countries and abolished the tendency to allow the tramp to ride free on freight trains, would the tramp and bum be abolished. She held this as the greatest evil in the fight against this class of semi-criminal men.

To further quote the speaker: "We must be sure that the wife knows her job, too. Visiting housekeepers, or volunteer house visitors, will solve this part of the problem for the 'grown-ups.'"

"I hope to see the time when every public, parochial and private school will teach the girl from the age of from 11 to 14 years to attend cooking and sewing classes."

The speaker dwelt for a time on what good the church could be to a community if used in all instances properly. "Think what it would mean if the church parlors were lighted and open several evenings in the week for the use of the working girls and boys, whose little rooms, perhaps cold and cheerless, or whose crowded homes turn them to the streets and down town amusements for brightness and companionship. Mrs. Van Wyck closed her address with a plea to get together to work for the one common cause.

Following her address, Mrs. Van Wyck requested all present to join in the conference by asking questions or making suggestions at any time during the meetings.

The Prisoner's Wage

In her speech on "The Prisoner's wage," Miss Catherine Williams, speaking in the place of Ralph E. Smith, devoted a great deal of time to the work of the last legislature and the efforts of the board of control. She emphasized the fact that in her opinion, while the state legislators had been careful in their appropriations for state institutions, their budgets had been exceedingly generous, taking into consideration the increase in expenditures during the past few years.

"Present society," she said, "is becoming more thoughtful of the physical need of the prisoner, the diseased person confined in state institutions, and the semi-criminal and the insane. This care must be given, and we must look to politics for our only aid. We must look at the work as a business man looks at his business.

"There are at present eleven public institutions in Wisconsin where are confined criminals, of one class or another. In these eleven institutions are housed between five and six thousand persons, counting women and children. The total appropriations for these are over $3,000,000 a year."

At this point in her address, Miss Williams made a detailed account of the expenditures of the different institutions. She spoke of the appropriations that are being made the homes for deformed children. She said that the state was in hopes of soon having a permanent home for these children.

The Prisoner's Family

An extremely interesting part of her address dealt with the family of the criminal. Miss Williams held that there should be a means for the man confined in state prisons of aiding his dependent family. "The state would not be wasting a penny if it could be assured that the family of the man in its institution could be cared for." Miss Williams dwelt for a time on the necessity of the state teaching its prisoners useful trades that they might ply upon their release.

Miss Williams spoke at some length on the plans that are under way in the reformatories and prisons of the state for the separation of different classes of prisoners, in a manner that will do away with contagion of disease, and a separation of the different types of criminalities. She also devoted a part of her address to the explaining of the usefulness of industries in the state prison. "One of the greatest needs in the prison," she said, "is to make the criminal understand that he has a place in society and must keep it."

Probation Officer Speaks

The speech of B. M. Jostad, state probation officer, which was delivered at the meeting this morning at St. Paul's Universalist church, follows in part:

"The first American juvenile and adult probation law was enacted 35 years ago by Massachusetts. At present 86 per cent of all of our states have juvenile laws in one form or another, there being but seven states without such, unless passed since April 20, 1912. In 1899, when the laws of Massachusetts had been in operation for 21 years, Illinois, Minnesota and Rhode Island enacted laws upon similar principles. Therefore 78 per cent of all the states now having juvenile laws have produced all such within the first 12 years of this, the present century.

"Wisconsin it is only within the power of courts having criminal jurisdiction to apply the law whenever a defendant not less than 16 years of age has been convicted."

State Board Responsible

"The court having possibly thus acted but provisionally by suspension of sentence—or conclusively by imposing sentence, the defendant is left temporarily in the custody of the sheriff when the court records are forwarded to the state board of control of Wisconsin at Madison. Now, therefore, such being substantially the modus operandi of the law from the time of the adjudication of the defendant's guilt until the case has been disposed of by the court provisionally or conclusively, the state board of control becomes responsible for the conduct of the probationer until his ultimate discharge from probationary or from institutional discipline, as the case may be.

"I cannot refrain from cautioning courts to exercise the utmost care in all cases of strangers who are under probationary consideration. In all such instances the state must needs go slowly, exercise utmost and deliberate judgment, but this has not always been done. The district attorney, local officers and at times the representative of this board should be called into service and the preliminaries be highly perfected and reported in writing to the court before it adjudicates the guilt of the offender openly and formally."

At this point Mr. Jostad dwelt on the outcome of the release of the one on probation.

Should Have Good Will of State

"As the probationer is about to be released," said Mr. Jostad, "it is timely to assure him of the good will of the state and restore him to good fellowship with the community. Fears and threats will effect no favorable changes. There must be a spontaneous response from within upon probationer's part to accomplish the real purpose of the state in its efforts to restore this citizen to a useful man. When the beneficiary of this law be-

University Exhibit

A special exhibit among the large number that are being shown in the parlors of the St. Paul's Universalist church this week in connection with the Charities and Correction conference is the one from the University of Wisconsin extension division in charge of Paul W. Black.

The extension division, under the department of general information, has lately begun the development of an exhibit method of education. At present a health exhibit is being made, a large part of which is at present in the city. It contains seventy screens relating to the general health and child welfare.

The health exhibit is built around the idea that all infectious and contagious diseases are easily preventable. The main object of the exhibit is to show that with but a slight knowledge about personal and public hygiene these diseases can be prevented.

The exhibit department has been made a permanent department of the university, and will be shown at various places throughout the state.

FINDS NEW PLANT ON SIBERIA PLAINS

Prof. N. E. Hanson of South Dakota Here on Way Back from Russian Expedition

Bringing back a new forage plant, which he discovered on the Siberian steppes near the Mongolian border, Prof. N. E. Hanson of the agricultural college of the University of South Dakota, is stopping off in La Crosse with his sister, Mrs. L. C. Pammell, 1218 Madison street, to rejoin his wife and two children before continuing to his home in Brookings, S. D.

The trip, which has taken all summer, is Prof. Hanson's fifth to Russia and his fourth to Siberia. On his first trip to the Czar's kingdom he was not allowed to penetrate into the mysterious regions east of Russia proper.

"Narrow escapes?" he said to a reporter today. "Oh, yes, I always have narrow escapes. But I was not killed, as you can see. Nothing very serious happened this time, barring a few runaways, and some near brushes with Mongol tribesmen, but the last trip I made we had an attack of Asiatic cholera in the expedition. That was bad."

Prof. Hanson is enthusiastic about his new forage plant. He discovered it while looking for Siberian varieties of Alfalfa, suitable for the extreme temperature changes of the northwest. He declares that his new plant will thrive under higher temperatures in summer and lower in winter than any now known in this country.

Concerning the plant, however, Mr. Hanson is reticent. He will not give its name, and withholds all but the barest description until he makes his formal report to the college. He said, however, that it resembles alfalfa.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

AUNT JO.
By CLARISSA MACKIE
(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A crash of breaking glass, followed by excited voices in altercation, brought David Carver out of the house at a bound. "What is the matter now?" he asked the flaxen-haired twins. "Reggie did it!" accused Robbie. "Robbie did it!" accused Reggie in turn. "If you please, Mr. Carver, I think they both did it," said the housekeeper indignantly. "Two stones came flying through the pantry window and the broken glass flew all over everything and the stones landed right in the berry pudding cook was making for dinner. If ever there were two mischievous—"

"That will do, Mrs. Soper," interrupted David. "I am sorry it has happened and you will see that cook does not make any more berry puddings for a month—stop crying, Robbie! And Mrs. Soper," turning again to the woman, "please telephone into town to have the glass replaced—Baker will give you the name of the glazier. Boys, come into the library."

Reggie and Robbie burst into fresh walls and slowly followed their uncle up the steps and into the gloom of the library.

"No puddin' for a week!" sniffed Reggie in his brother's ear. Robbie gulped down a sob. Berry puddings were the delight of their childish souls.

"Boys," said Uncle David, sadly, "this is the third time since breakfast that I have been called away from my work by your naughtiness. When your father and mother went to Germany I offered to take care of you during their absence because I believed you would be good boys."

"Why is it that you can't enjoy the pleasures I have prepared for you? You have ponies to ride, you have swings, and games of every description and yet you continually run away out of bounds and cause me an end of trouble. What am I to do?"

The twins hung their heads and the yellow shocks of hair tossed like wind-swept chrysanthemums. "I'm not going to beg you to be good. If I hear another bad report of your misdoings—what is it, Baker?"—to the servant who stood in the doorway.

"Please, sir," said Baker, with a swift glance at the chastened twins. Miss Scoville has sent a messenger to say that the little boys have overturned two of her beehives."

David flushed. This was the latest of many complaints he had received from his nearest neighbor concerning the antics of his little visitors. Miss Scoville's caustic letters embodying these complaints had made him extremely uncomfortable for many weeks. He did not know Miss Scoville.

But neighborly courtesy demanded that something be done about the matter, so taking the twins the three walked hand in hand across the wide lawn till they came to a gap in an evergreen hedge, that admitted them to Miss Scoville's estate.

"Why did you turn over the hives, Robbie?" asked David. Robbie paused and hung back to kick a pebble. "I dunno," he muttered.

"He wanted to see if the bees would come out," tattled Reggie. "Did you find out?" asked David suppressing a smile.

"Yes," said Robbie gravely. "One stung me on the hand." Robbie and Reggie ran on ahead, and as they came abreast of the summer house they paused and, with one accord, dived through the doorway and disappeared from view.

David did not unbend from his dignity to follow them. Instead, he proceeded along the path and presently stood in the presence of Miss Scoville.

She was a tall, thin, high-nosed elderly lady, who looked coldly at him from prominent light blue eyes. "I brought my nephews to make apologies to you, Miss Scoville," he smiled ruefully, "but they have escaped from me and—"

Miss Scoville lifted an ear trumpet. "Politics?" she shrieked. "Young man, I beg you to understand that I am not interested in politics—I don't care whether women ever vote or not! Most of 'em are running around the country bent on pleasure, while their ill-behaved children are left to annoy the neighbors! Be seated!"

David sat down suddenly, although he felt a strong inclination to take to his heels in the face of this strong-minded spinster.

"I am Mr. Carver, your next door neighbor," he smiled ingratiatingly. "I came to talk to you about the bees."

"Peace?" vociferated Miss Scoville. "You are collecting money for the erection of what?"

David drew out a notebook and pencil and wrote a few words which he presented for Miss Scoville's near-sighted inspection. While she scanned the words his eyes roved past her to a corner of the veranda around which peeped three pairs of merry eyes. The four brown eyes belonged to the yellow-headed twins, but the wonderful hazel eyes set beneath a broad brow, above which was a coronet of jet black hair, belonged to a girl.

David blushed furiously because he was a dignified young college professor and women had never interested him.

But the girl—and the impish twins! Who was she and what were they doing together?

"Indeed!" cried Miss Scoville, as she read the note; "so you are the misguided young man who has charge of those bad little boys?"

"I am, madam," answered David, as meekly as he could with those six eyes fixed on him. He suddenly felt very young. "I brought them over to apologize to you, and here they are!"

With one bound he reached forward and grasped the nearest twin and with him pulled the three eavesdroppers.

"Jo?" exclaimed Miss Scoville, severely. "What are you doing here? Have you no regard for the conventions that you rush upon me in this manner?"

The girl's face changed and the dimples faded. "I found the little boys in the garden, Aunt Hester," she said, soberly, "and I brought them here."

"Now that they are here, I can dispense with your presence," said Miss Scoville.

Her niece withdrew from the clinging grasp of the twins and had reached the hall door when as by one accord the two started in pursuit.

"Aunt Jo—we want you to stay, Aunt Jo!"

David caught a glimpse of the girl's face, suddenly aflame with color. But instantly she vanished from his sight.

Miss Scoville gathered up her skirts and turned toward the door. "You may tell Josephine that I will never give my consent to her marriage with you unless you court her in the conventional manner—the idea!" And Miss Scoville flourished into the house, leaving David to face a very indignant young woman who came from some safe concealment.

"How dare you—how dare you?" she cried.

"Really, I was rather pushed into it," David began to excuse himself, then suddenly he said abruptly: "I'm not a bit sorry, Miss Jo—and I mean every word I say. I shall hope to gain your consent to be the children's 'Aunt Jo.'"

Miss Scoville, who had heard the outcry of the twins, grasped Reggie by one white linen shoulder.

"Young man, why do you call my niece 'Aunt Jo'?" she demanded.

The frightened Reggie bawled his answer lustily: "Because every little boy has uncles and aunts together! There's only Uncle David here—and Aunt Jo promised us she would be our aunt!"

Miss Scoville glared at the embarrassed but not unhappy bachelor. "Mr. Carver, has Josephine promised you that she would be an aunt to these children?"

"Not yet, Miss Scoville," said David wickedly.

David Carver led his chastened nephews home. But it is a significant that Josephine Scoville was not as flinty-hearted as had appeared that summer afternoon. While she was cold to David himself, she was kind to the twins and graciously permitted them to call her "Jo", leaving off the objectionable title.

David sulked over this, but after he understood women a little better, and Jo in particular, he went impetuously about his wooing, and when the married Carvers returned from Germany they were just in time to attend a wedding whereby the twins were furnished with an auntie of their own—and they called her "Aunt Jo."

THE MENACE OF STARVATION

An Editorial from The Philadelphia North American.

"It is not often that the North American takes a book as the subject of an editorial. We cite the fact because we wish to emphasize our belief that the book which we propose to discuss is a very remarkable book, indeed.

And we would suggest that those who can will buy it, keep it, read it, reread it, and study the facts which it presents. For these facts are of vital import to the people of the world.

The book of which we speak is "ON BOARD THE GOOD SHIP EARTH." The author is Herbert Quick, and it is published by the Bobbs-Merrill Company, of Indianapolis.

"The Good Ship Earth" is destined to make a profound impression on the thought of the world. It is bound to be translated into many languages and to be popularly read in many countries.

Mr. Quick's book is not a vision but a presentation of alarming truths. The reader is looking into the elemental facts upon which the fate of the entire human race depends.

There is the fascination of danger about the book. And the fascination is all the more eager and intense in "On Board the Good Ship Earth" because the danger is real and present, and besets the reader himself and his children and his children's children.

This danger is something more than individual. It rises above the epic, for it is greater than national. It is racial; almost cosmic. It is the danger of starvation, of an earth no longer capable of feeding her children. It conjures to the mind the picture of the human race in a long, agonizing, losing fight against extermination.

The fight is on at this very moment. In some parts of the world it has already become a losing fight; as it is bound to become to the people of this, the most favored of nations, if we do not guard with jealous care the treasures which nature scattered in our soil.

The soil is not only being exhausted of plant food but is being washed by rivers into the sea. The wastage of soil in the United States alone is 610,000,000 cubic yards a year. And if the soil that is lost in this country every year were hauled and dumped into the sea the train of teams would reach twenty-six times around the earth.

This is so much the concern of the nation, of the entire race, that the time will come when muddy water running off a farmer's field will be evidence upon which to take him into court and impose a penalty.

In the matter of coal, there is an equally frightful waste under existing methods. In the United States there is used every year ten times as much coal as the entire output of all the mines in the world from earliest times up to 1843. Three-fourths of this represents waste.

Depletion of soils, wasting of coal, destruction of timber, are bringing about a situation which will make it impossible for the earth to sustain the vast population which will come to it.

The problems are complicated with questions of race and color, which in themselves constitute great menace to the human race. Up to this point it might seem that Mr. Quick's book is pessimistic. But it is not. It is extremely optimistic. For all the problems he suggests can be solved by the application of scientific truth.

It is this note of optimism that makes the book worth while. The race need not die of starvation. But its rescue is in its own hands. Mr. Quick looks at the problems of conservation in the largest sense, in which the nations meet to solve them will determine the fate of the people of those nations as passengers on "The Good Ship Earth."

Mr. Quick's book will be a powerful influence in bringing the nations to face those problems in a just and wise spirit. Ask for "On Board the Good Ship Earth" at your bookseller's.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Light rains in the dry sections of India and Argentina caused a depression of wheat prices at Liverpool and started the local market on a downward movement today. Moderate receipts at the Northwest market, whereas a big decrease was expected, was another bear factor, and after opening 1/4c to 1/2c lower, wheat futures had additional decline of 1/4c to 1/2c during the forenoon.

Corn was lower at Liverpool and the American weather map favored the sellers. The weakness in wheat also tended to depress corn prices and at noon futures were 1/4c under last night's closing prices.

Oats had an easy undertone at two start, but later showed considerable strength, in view of the break in the corn. The breaking started on the dip and prices held without further break.

Provisions started easier with lower hog prices but had partial recovery toward noon.

Oats firmed and advanced 1/4c to 1/2c in the afternoon, but other grain futures closed at about noon prices.

Provisions maintained the forenoon advance until the close.

Milwaukee and Whitewater Normals Plan Elimination Game for State Title

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 5.—Milwaukee normal eleven probably will line up against Whitewater on a local field Saturday. Coach Angell announced yesterday that the place of the contest will be definitely settled today. The game will be played to decide which of the two teams shall meet Superior normal for the state championship. Superior already has won the title of the northern sec-
